

1 ABSTRACT

2 A system and method capable of identifying that a node of an extensible 3 markup language (XML) document is editable using an element of an electronic-4 form template is described. In at least some embodiments, the system and method 5 are capable of determining operations that are permitted for the identified node 6 using another element of the electronic-form template.